

Calibration. How do we calibrate conviction, consistency, or anything else? Calibration is about dialing it in, and in my opinion, we all have an ongoing need to calibrate during our lives.

Speedometers are calibrated, sensors, thermometers...did you know that even your oven needs to be calibrated from time to time?

Calibration is done so that we can be confident with the results.

As a matter of fact, to be SURE of the results, one must remember that there is an ongoing need to maintain calibration. An airplane continually corrects its course while flying.

Calibration gives CLARITY.

Socrates said, "An unexamined life is not worth living."

This is the call to calibrate your conviction with clarity-

- What are they based on?

- How do these beliefs propel me to my God-given purpose?

Once we ask, journal, meditate, and pray on all these things, we can start living on purpose, with clarity, with conviction that is CALIBRATED regularly.

To REFLECT the BEAUTY of whom we are - created in His image, fearfully and wonderfully made, on purpose for a purpose.

So what's next for living in your purpose is finding it, defining it, and refining it.

Cast a big net, ask great big questions, and expect great big answers. LOOK for them.

We are all compilations of so many thoughts and ideas, but as we untangle the jumble daily, sincerely seeking, knowing the divine purpose we all have will uniquely show up when we do this soul work, we'll end up on the other side of the "?" with an answer.
